

"NOBODY BROKE THE LAW"

"Grizzlygate" inquiry clears Phillips and aides

VICTORIA (CP) — A judicial inquiry into what became known as the Grizzlygate affair has concluded that no one broke the law in the purchase of shares in Quasar Petroleum Ltd. and Cheyenne Petroleum Ltd.

The inquiry, under Mr. Justice Walter Kirke Smith, was launched Jan. 11 after opposition charges that government employees made windfall profits speculating in shares of the two firms on the basis of inside information on a proposed pipeline project.

The inquiry report was tabled in the legislature Thursday.

Cheyenne, Quasar and two smaller firms own natural gas reserves in the region to be served by the pipeline in northeastern British Columbia.

Four government employees, including an aide to Economic Development Minister Don Phillips, lost their jobs when it was discovered they had traded in shares of the companies before the Dec. 10 official announcement that the pipeline would be built.

Also dismissed were Phillips' Dawson Creek constituency secretary and two employees of the British Columbia Petroleum Corp. (BCPC), which was involved in detailed planning of the development.

In his report, Smith found that all four men "have suffered adequate penalty for violating a term of their employment. None broke any law, and all, in the commission's view, have been appropriately punished."

The commission also found: - that prior knowledge of the proposed pipeline was widespread;

- that Phillips and BCPC chairman George Lechner acted quickly when the transactions were discovered;

- that a freeze was placed April 3, 1976, on all of the Crown land near which the route of the proposed pipeline travelled;

- that none of the principals, including Phillips, had any property along the proposed route;

- that two company presidents were in conflict of interest situations during stock transactions; and - that there was no wrongdoing on the part of the governors of the Vancouver Stock Exchange.

Smith noted there was enough information publicly available for Pemberton Securities Ltd. to circulate a newsletter Dec. 2, 1976, predicting that Westcoast Transmission would be asked to build the pipeline and processing facilities in the Sukunka-Grizzly Valley area.

"The researcher who wrote this newsletter put it succinctly when he said in evidence that by the beginning of December any turkey would have known these facts," Smith said.

The judge said the rumours reached a crescendo in the early part of December when there would be a major announcement Dec. 10.

"The possibility of a pipeline being built in the Grizzly Valley area was far from a secret," Smith said.

"There was sufficient public information available by, at latest, August 1976, that it is extremely difficult, if not impossible, to say that any person had special confidential information which would give that person a special position over other members of the public."

Smith found that Arthur Weeks, Phillips' $29,000-a-year special assistant, and constituency secretary Arthur Cameron had violated an unwritten departmental rule in purchasing shares in either or both of the petroleum companies, and that BCPC employees Donald Reed and Terence Barrows had transgressed a similar rule. The commission did not find any evidence "of any wrongdoing on the part of any governor" of the VSE.

Salmon poaching a big business

LeBlanc sees fines as true deterrent

VANCOUVER CP - Federal Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc said, Wednesday he's concerned that salmon poaching in British Columbia has become a million-dollar organized business - but added he hopes that heavier fines which come into effect Sept. 1 will help combat the problem.

Amendments to the federal Fishery Act will increase the maximum penalty for poachers to $5,000 from $1,000 and will continue to carry an alternative of a one-year jail sentence. Courts also will be empowered to seize poachers' vehicles and equipment.

Federal fishery officers in B.C. have said that poachers have organized themselves into groups which are using sophisticated communications and transportation systems to turn poaching into a million-dollar international business.

Bootleg salmon are finding their way to markets in the Vancouver area, the Prairies, the United States, Japan and possibly Europe.

Poachers are jeopardizing the salmon industry by catching spawning salmon that are essential to ensure future abundance of the fish.

Fishery river patrols have been shot at by poachers although no one has been hit. Officers were issued with revolvers for the first time last year but to date have not used them.

Fishery officials say poachers have organized themselves into gangs with one distributor handling the catch from 10 to 15 poachers. There are about 100 hard-core poachers, and some of those who have been caught have been found to have police records for such crimes as armed robbery, rape and even murder.

Charles Friend, LeBlanc's information officer, said Wednesday that "the minister is aware of the seriousness of the situation and he's very concerned."

Friend said that in addition to increased fines, LeBlanc is looking at other possible ways to fight poachers, including increasing the number of patrol officers - a move which some B.C. fishery officials believe is the only solution.

Friend said confrontations between poachers and fishery patrols in New Brunswick have sometimes produced "out-and-out wars" resulting in gun battles, fishery vessels being sunk by rocks catapulted from the inner-tubes on shore, and the burning of fishery officers' homes.

"This kind of confrontation in B.C. is not new to us," he said.

RUPERT CANNERIES JUST HUMMING AWAY

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C. (CP) — More than 10 million pounds of Alaskan salmon have been brought here for processing, federal fisheries officer Laurie Gordon said Thursday.

Gordon said canneries at Ketchikan, Alaska are restricting fishermen to quotas because of the volume of salmon being caught but doubted Prince Rupert fishermen would have the same problem unless catches are far bigger than predicted.

He said the fisheries department has issued licences under the Coastal Fisheries Protection Act to allow the excess salmon to be brought into Canadian ports.

The Alaskan pink salmon run is expected to be the biggest in 30 years, while south of the border the pink catch in the Nass River estuary is expected to break the 1.2 million record set in 1968.

Gordon said British Columbia Packers, K. S. MacMillan and Canadian Fish Company Ltd., three of the largest fish processors in Prince Rupert, have been receiving the American fish and more is expected. The Native Co-Op cannery at Port Simpson, B.C. is sending a packer to Ketchikan to buy fish.

"It looks like all the canneries may try to get a piece of the action," he said.

Don McLeod, vice-president of northern operations for Canadian Fish Company, estimated it has been about 10 years since the company has taken American fish for processing.

Meanwhile in Ketchikan, fishermen have complained that canneries there are unable to handle the catch which currently totals about 6 million fish.

you want to cool off all over or just refresh your dry throat on the beach like these youngsters.

HOUSE

Shelford dislikes delays

A Social Credit backbencher suggested Wednesday that the provincial government set up a special committee to streamline the work of the British Columbia legislature.

"I would say at the present time that we're 50 years out of date," Cyril Shelford (Skeena) said during debate on the legislature's budget estimates.

"I'm certainly not satisfied with the way this house is functioning at this time," Shelford said. "I would say, without any chance of being contradicted, that the people out in the country think we're a bunch of idiots at best."

"I would suggest that all members of this house should be taking a hard look at themselves, because if we don't, we'll be destroying the institution which we are in."

Shelford said people say the MLAs are "wasting an awful lot of time nit-picking at each other" when they should be in their constituencies "looking at the problems."

He suggested that a four-member committee, one from each party, be set up to prepare terms of reference for a special house committee to consider how to "get the business of the people done more quickly."

He also called on the ministers to try and get around the province "so they can see what's happening."

WHAT ABOUT ME? NIELSEN MUST ASK

VICTORIA (CP) — The Opposition in the British Columbia legislature got some evidence Wednesday for its on-and-off claims that Environment Minister Jim Nielsen's cabinet seat is insecure.

Graham Lea (NDP-Prince Rupert) asked Premier Bill Bennett if he has confidence in Economic Development Minister Don Phillips.

Bennett rose and said he has confidence in all his cabinet ministers and began naming them one by one, turning to look at them as he proceeded down the front bench.

After naming Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm, Bennett came to Nielsen's seat, but the minister was not in the house.

There was laughter from the Opposition. Bennett, apparently perceiving that it might look bad if he did not name them all, continued after a few moments hesitation but skipped to the next seat occupied by Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf, leaving out Nielsen who sits between Vander Zalm and Bawlf.

The laughter from the Opposition benches became louder as Vander Zalm frantically pointed at Nielsen's seat, trying to attract the premier's attention to it.

The premier had apparently forgotten whose seat it was: "Who's there?" he asked, and the laughter rang out even louder.

Finally the premier remembered, saying "...and the minister of the environment."

The premier, looking slightly red-faced, ticked off the rest of the names of the cabinet and sat down.

WHALE HUNT

Greenpeace say Russians cheat

SAN FRANCISCO (CP) — Officials of the environmentalist Greenpeace Foundation, based in Vancouver, told a news conference here Wednesday they were optimistic they could provide documentation of alleged killing of undersized whales by the Soviet whaling fleet.

Greenpeace president Patrick Moore said United States President Jimmy Carter and Secretary of Commerce Juanita Krebs have asked for documentary evidence of any infractions by members of the International Whaling Commission.

Moore told reporters he was optimistic that Greenpeace could provide photographic evidence based on the group's confrontation with Soviet whalers Saturday.

"Definitely one of the whales we saw killed was 15 feet long," said Moore. The minimum size for whales killed under IWC regulations is 30 feet.

Bob Taunt, director of Greenpeace in San Francisco, said the foundation hopes to provide the White House with evidence by the end of this week.

Taunt said that on a recent visit to Washington, D.C., he discussed the killing of undersized whales with William Aron, the U.S. commissioner to the IWC.

As a result of the conversation he met with presidential assistant Kathy Fletcher.

The White House, said Taunt, "expressed interest in seeing our evidence." He said the president favored black and white still photographs.

"I think this response from the president is very good," said Moore. "It's more than we've ever seen before."

He noted that Greenpeace had presented photographic evidence to the IWC two years ago about Soviets killing undersized whales but "the IWC chose to take the word of a so-called independent Japanese observer over the word of Greenpeace."

Moore said there are Japanese observers with Soviet whaling fleets and Soviet observers with Japanese fleets. The two nations have the largest whaling industries in the world.

GOLD RUSH CITY

Dawson's Diamond Jubilee

Dawson City, Yukon, the golden city of the north, is at the half-way point in its year-long diamond jubilee celebrations. City status was granted on Jan. 9, 1902.

At the height of the Klondike gold-rush, in 1898, Dawson housed over 40,000 restless adventurers and now, although its inhabitants number 600, a sense of excitement still lingers. This summer will be a particularly interesting time to be there.

Three years after incorporation the citizens, dissatisfied with mismanagement and high taxes, voted to remove the mayor and council and to return to government by Ottawa. But the charter was never rescinded and Dawson is still the most northerly city in the Commonwealth.

It has been a place of quick changes and contrasts. Within the space of months, history turned a small ledge of forest, wedged between a mountain and the Yukon and Klondike rivers which meet beside it, into a teeming center of prospectors and traders, ready to gamble their lives on rumours of gold. A few years later, the community mellowed into upright Edwardian elegance, where Paris fashions were worn and society was ordered with strict formality.

Entertainment was a priority in Dawson from its beginning. In the riotous days of 1898, when nuggets of gold jangled from rock crevices on the bar-room girls and passed from hand to hand as normal tender, a colourful character named Arizona Charlie Meadows came to town to collect a share of the riches.

No miner, Charlie sought his fortune in show biz and built the Palace Grand theater and dance hall. Decorating it with plush velvet and staging sumptuous shows with high-kicking dancers in frilly skirts and singers in low-cut gowns and ostrich-plumed hats, Charlie claimed to own the most lavish theater in the north. He undoubtedly did.

As the fortune-hunters moved on to other gold strikes, or to spend their wealth elsewhere, the dance hall queens went too and the theater was abandoned. It had to wait another fifty years or so before it came back to life.

Now, each summer, the Palace Grand is decked out with flags and the velvet curtains rise for a family version of the old vaudeville shows, with skits, jugglers, songs and can-can dancers.

Down the street, gamblers try their luck at Diamond Tooth Gertie's Gambling Hall which has been refurbished in honor of Jubilee year. Red tiffany shades hang from a black ceiling, lighting the oval of green baize gaming tables. Dealers flick the cards in response to the players' signals, then gather them up with smooth professional gestures. Round the walls, crown and anchor wheels spin. Non-players walk around, sit at tables beside the stage or look down from the balcony on the kaleidoscope of movement below. Several times a night, the stage lights up and a line of high-kicking girls dance to the accompaniment of a honkytonk piano and a comedienne sings and tells stories with the vivacity of Gertie herself, who was one of the stars of the gold-rush era.

The beginning of July has always been a time of celebration in Dawson. As almost 90 percent of the gold seekers came from the United States, July 4 was a notable date for them. Combined with the Canadian holiday, festivities from July 1-4 will include a variety of community activities this year.

The gold find on Bonanza Creek which triggered off the stampede to the Klondike was made on August 17, 1896. That lucky date is commemorated by Discovery Day each year. It is a time of parades, sports and traditional canoe and raft races, which will be August 13-15 this year.

As usual, canoes will struggle across the fast-flowing Yukon river, in front of the city, and the rafts will race from eight miles up the Klondike to its confluence with the Yukon.

September promises to be the most nostalgic month of this birthday year as every former Dawson resident has been invited to return to join the Homecoming celebration. What stories and memories that reunion is likely to stir up! Over Labour Day weekend, September 3-5, there will be barbecues and receptions and a brand new contest - the Great Klondike Outhouse Race - a two-mile run round the city for five-man teams carrying home-made outhouses.

Dawson's museum staff has taken a lead in jubilee planning. Helping to organize the distribution of proclamations, the sale of gold and silver memorial medallions, the production of a doll specially designed and sewn by local people and arranging an anniversary exhibition. With her rouged cheeks and prim clothes, the doll combines a richness and respectability typical of Dawson's golden history.

Dawson's civic pride certainly exceeds its size and arrangements for its 75th year have kept the population busy for months. Last January, a huge birthday cake was cut and only half was eaten. The other half has been kept for the finale. Until the last crumb is consumed, sometime in December, Dawson's party will continue.

"MA" MURRAY

Newspaper legend now 90

LILLOOET, B.C. (CP) — Margaret (Ma) Murray celebrated her 90th birthday Wednesday with blue eyes flashing enjoyment as she held up her ear trumpet to hear Jack Pearsall (L-Coast Chilcotin) bring greetings from Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, Conservative leader Joe Clark, NDP leader Ed Broadbent and Social Credit Leader Gilles Caouette.

In a letter, the prime minister said the former owner of the Bridge-River Lillooet News was a "legend in her own time." The governor-general also sent greetings.

Friends and relatives guided Margaret, the name she prefers to Ma, through a busy day which included many interviews, a special Gregorian mass at St. John's Roman Catholic Church, a roast and a reception at the home of her daughter, Georgina Kedell.

At the roast, Margaret paid tribute to her husband of 48 years, George Murray, who died 16 years ago. The two owned four newspapers and worked on 12.

The papers included the Chinook, later The Standard in Vancouver, the Howe Sound News, the Lillooet paper, the Alaska Highway News in Fort St. John and the Fort Nelson News.

They were often poor, Margaret said, and her husband was exasperated when she turned to prayer every time the sheriff turned up to try to repossess a linotype or some other vital piece of equipment from the impoverished journalists. Although she has been known for the witty barbs she has thrown at famous Canadian politicians Margaret had only kind words Wednesday as she heard a specially composed poem by Vancouver musician Jennifer Lillooet Fox describing her "gentle touch and good strong mind," accepted a "book" containing a bottle of whisky and two glasses, and a plaque commemorating the occasion.

In an interview, Margaret said she got her reputation for being irascible because "I always call a spade a spade." But having done that, she said, she tries to work with people she disagrees with.

In the audience was Mayor Joe Rickard who described the woman he has squabbled with many times since the two met in Williams Lake in the mid-

30s. "I'll say one thing about her she may have a pen like a headman's axe, but she has a heart the size of a whiskey barrel."

"Her presence here has certainly done a lot to put Lillooet on the map. She has become a Canadian institution."

Margaret had advice for both young and old saying that old people who wish to stay healthy should do as much as possible for themselves.

"If you have a break at all as a child, you have a mother and a father who teach you that you have to make your own salvation," she said, adding that for all that independence in seeking salvation, other people must be accommodated and lived with.

UNION SQUABBLE

Dissidents stage sit-in

VANCOUVER (CP) — John Hart, spokesman for the Laborers' International Union, said Wednesday that the union will seek a court injunction today against a group of dissident members who have taken over Local 602 offices from an outside trustee.

A group of about 20 union members stormed into the offices Tuesday, demanding that the operations of Local 602 be returned to them and forcing trustee Stacey J. Warner out of the president's office. Warner was appointed by the union's international headquarters in Washington, D.C., to take control of the 4,000-member local when it was placed under trusteeship last week. Two of the local's full-time officials, president Nick Kinnak and secretary Ron McClurg, who were fired without notice, were among those occupying the office.

Hart, the union's international representative in Vancouver, said the union wants an injunction to get the members out of the offices. He said that since Kinnak and McClurg have been removed from their official union positions, they have no right to be carrying out union business. He said the protesters are acting illegally by preventing the trustee from carrying out his duties, accepting money at the office and blocking phone calls.

The local has scheduled a general membership meeting tonight to determine whether the local officers retain the confidence of the rank-and-file. Hart said the meeting would have no status, as Kinnak has no authority to call it. Hart said he doesn't know how much support the dissidents have from the general membership, but that when the trustee first took over the initial response appeared to be supportive.

Mrs. Caroline Doll passed away in the Kitimat Hospital on July 11, at the age of 86.

She was a long time resident of Terrace, having come here in 1927, and will be remembered for her kindness to all.

She worked with Dr. Mills to bring many Terrace babies into the world.

Mrs. Doll was born in Alma, Ontario in 1891, the eldest of a large family. Her father was a mill owner and served as deputy reeve for 18 years.

She is survived by her husband, Harvey Doll, of Terrace; three sons, Stan and Gordon of Terrace and Clarence of Prince George; and five daughters Mrs. Irene Ungerer and Mrs. Irene Veldhuizen of Vancouver, Mrs. Doriel Kinnear of Mission, Mrs. Marjorie MacKay of Prince Rupert and Mrs. Virginia Jones of Terrace.

She was predeceased by three daughters, one as an infant, Lorraine at 11 years of age and Mrs. Alberta Klein.

MAIR INTRODUCES

Rights for locals under new booze law

VICTORIA (CP) — Municipalities in British Columbia will have veto power over liquor licences under legislation introduced in the B.C. legislature Thursday by Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Rafe Mair.

Mair said the Liquor Control and Licensing Amendment Act, 1977, will take power away from the Liquor Control Branch.

"Perhaps the most important effect of the act is to dispel the impression that the branch is omnipotent in matters relating to the consumption of alcoholic beverages in this province," Mair told reporters.

"There are obvious instances where the wishes of the community or an impartial third party must prevail," he said.

Mair said under the new act, a municipality or regional district may overrule the branch by restricting or prohibiting all types of entertainment in an establishment, even though entertainment may be provided for in the liquor licence.

"By the same token, if the municipality cancels the business licence of any licensed premises, the branch will automatically suspend the operator's licence," he said.

Mair said the bill also changes the procedure for applying for a neighborhood pub licence, clarifies regulations affecting consumption of liquor on beaches and in parks and campgrounds, and sets up a new appeal procedure.

The minister said sites for pubs will have to be approved by the general manager in the preliminary stage of proposal.

After a site has been approved, the branch will then consider the wishes of the community.

He said this may be in the form of a petition or referendum, in which case the branch would issue the licence only if at least 60 per cent of the residents in the community are in favor.

Mair said the amendments would give applicants a better idea in advance of how their application would fare with the government.

Under the new appeal procedures, Mair said he has instituted regulations to make it clear that an applicant or licensee has the power to force the branch to decide his case as quickly as possible.

As well, the new act reduces annual winery fees to $500 from $1,000.

Mair said the existing fee is "simply too harsh for the many small wineries we hope to see established in the province."

The minister went on to say that an annual licence fee exemption enjoyed by bottlers of alcoholic beverages will no longer apply. The new act brings bottlers into line with brewers and distillers, who must pay the fee, he said.

CARTER ANNOUNCES

Amnesty proposal
for illegal aliens

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — President Carter proposed amnesty on Thursday for millions of illegal aliens, mostly Mexicans, who have lived in the United States for at least seven years.

The amnesty plan was included in a set of recommendations Carter sent to Congress to deal with the problem.

There are no accurate figures on the number of illegal aliens in the United States but government estimates vary between five million and 20 million.

The president divided illegal immigrants into three categories:

—Those who came to the United States before Jan. 1, 1970. They would be permitted to remain as legal residents.

—Those who arrived before Jan. 1, 1977, but after 1970. They would be given temporary resident status but could not bring their families to the United States and would not be eligible to receive welfare, food stamps and other federal social services.

—Those who arrived in the U.S. after Jan. 1, 1977. They would be subject to deportation if traced.

Carter called for legislation to penalize employers who knowingly hire illegal aliens.

Penalties would include a $1,000 fine for each illegal alien hired and imprisonment for those who receive compensation for knowingly helping an illegal alien to obtain or keep a job.

Carter told Congress that he wanted authority to station an additional 2,000 guards on the Mexican border to prevent illegal entry.

The border is mostly unprotected and thousands of Mexicans slip across to obtain temporary employment as farm workers at low pay.

Carter said enforcement of minimum wage and labor laws should be strengthened so that more Americans might accept jobs now filled by illegal immigrants.

He said he realized much of the illegal immigration from Mexico and other countries was because their economies did not provide enough jobs.

The United States, he said, would study ways to help these countries with economic aid.

Hundreds attend
funeral service

TORONTO (CP) — Hundreds of mourners crowded into a church in the Portuguese area of the city today to attend the funeral of Manuel Jaques, the 12-year-old shoeshine boy whose naked body was found Monday on the roof of a Yonge Street body-rub parlor.

Several hundred mourners waited outside the packed church and traffic was so heavy that police cordoned off the area to make way for the funeral procession.

Adults and children sobbed as Valdemiro and Maria Jaques, the deceased boy's parents, were helped out of the church.

"You should not feel alone at this tragic time," Rev. Antero de Melo, a Roman Catholic priest told the Jaques family in a brief eulogy at the funeral home Wednesday night.

"All Torontonians are with you. Manuel's death was not in vain, for it has awakened the officials of this city and shown them where the evil lies."

Meanwhile, three men charged with first-degree murder in connection with the death of Manuel appeared in court in Toronto today. Albert Wayne Kribs, 41, Joseph Wood, 26, and Werner Gruener, 28, all of Toronto, were remanded in custody until Tuesday.

They were charged after being arrested Monday on a Vancouver-bound train at Sioux Lookout, Ont., and brought by plane to Toronto Wednesday.

A fourth man charged with first-degree murder, Saul David Betesh, 28, of Toronto, was also remanded in custody until Tuesday when he appeared in court last Tuesday.

On Wednesday, more than 3,000 persons filed past the boy's open coffin. Many wept and most left donations that totalled $2,695 by the end of the evening.

The eight surviving members of the Jaques family, the women dressed in traditional mourning black, sat embracing each other and wept profusely during the evening eulogy.

Although under heavy sedation, Mr. and Mrs. Jaques insisted on staying at the funeral home from the time it opened to the public at 10:30 a.m. until it closed at 9 p.m.

The killing of the boy after he was lured from his shoeshine stand by a man offering him $35 an hour to move photographic equipment has prompted Torontonians to start memorial funds and offer aid to the bereaved family.

About 30 persons stood at a street corner and collected money from passing motorists Wednesday night to contribute to a memorial fund.

LONG NHL CAREER

Ron Stewart named to coach L.A. Kings

LOS ANGELES AP - Ron Stewart, who spent 21 years in the National Hockey League as a player, was named coach of Los Angeles Kings Thursday.

He replaces Bob Pulford, who resigned to become coach and general manager of Chicago Black Hawks.

Under Pulford last season, the Kings finished second in the Norris Division with a 34-31-15 record and 83 points. They advanced to the quarter-finals of the Stanley Cup playoffs before losing to Boston Bruins.

Stewart, 45, who previously coached two seasons in the Kings' farm system, comes to Los Angeles from New York Rangers, where he served as director of player personnel.

During his career, Stewart played in 1,352 NHL games, the ninth-most in league history.

He becomes the seventh coach of the Kings, who have been in the NHL for 10 years.

In 1973-74, Stewart coached the Kings' affiliate at Portland, taking the club from last place to second and then to the final round of the Western League playoffs. The following season, his American League team at Springfield, Mass., finished third and then won the playoffs.

"I chose Ron Stewart because of his sterling record in my organization and his winning ways," said

Jack Kent Cooke, the Kings' owner. "He's a winning coach and he'll win with the Los Angeles Kings; of that, I'm positive. I like him and the Los Angeles fans will like him."

"I had a multi-year contract with the New York Rangers, but I sought out and received permission to approach Los Angeles about the coaching position," Stewart said.

Stewart served briefly as coach of the Rangers in 1975, but was replaced by John Ferguson after three months.

He began his NHL career in 1952 with Toronto Maple Leafs, where he spent 13 seasons. He also spent nearly six seasons as a Rangers player.

NFL PRE-SEASON PLAY

Big and small clash in Florida rivalry

Sometimes, the less important a game is, the more important it can become. To wit: Miami Dolphins vs. Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

Last year, while the Bucs were trying (and failing) 14 times to put together a National Football League victory, the Dolphins were falling apart. They had their worst record (6-8), since 1969. And few of the victories was as hard-earned as the 23-20 squeaker they managed over Tampa Bay.

Granted Saturday night's game in Tampa, the second meeting of the two teams, is a meaningless one as far as any standings go, being the opener of the NFL exhibition season for each club. But a triumph by the Bucs could put a big dent in the Dolphins' egos.

"The game is probably more important to them than to us," said John McKay, bracing himself for another tough season as Tampa Bay's head coach. "They're rebuilding and a loss could really damage their image."

The first full weekend of NFL pre-season play gets started tonight with Baltimore Colts at Denver Broncos and Philadelphia Eagles at New York Jets.

Also on Saturday it's Minnesota Vikings at Los Angeles Rams, Atlanta Falcons at St. Louis Cardinals, New Orleans Saints at Chicago Bears, San Diego Chargers at Dallas Cowboys, New England Patriots at New York Giants, Buffalo Bills at Pittsburgh Steelers, Kansas City Chiefs at Detroit Lions and Cincinnati Bengals at Green Bay Packers.

On Sunday, Seattle Seahawks are at San Francisco 49ers and on Monday night Washington Redskins visit Cleveland Browns and Houston Oilers are at Oakland Raiders.

McKay stressed he's not all that concerned with the outcome of the Bucs-Dolphins game. In fact, he's already downplaying it, sounding as though he's bracing for a defeat and seemingly explaining why he expects one.

"I don't look for us to go out and play as good or as close as we did last year," he said. "I don't want anyone to think we aren't going to try and win ball games—but we have a lot of people we have to look at in game situations to see how they react."

"I know how (defensive end) Lee Roy Selmon plays and, after seeing him in a few games, it would be senseless for me to play him in every game and take a chance on his getting hurt. What we want to find out is who else can play in that position."

The Rams—and their fans—no doubt will be watching very closely to see just what Joe Namath can or can't do for them. He'll be under a microscope every time he fades back and faces Minnesota's pass defence—assuming he sees action at all.

Other teams giving newly acquired quarterbacks the once-over include the Buccaneers (Gary Huff), Denver (Craig Morton), the Giants (Steve Ramsey), Philadelphia (Ron Jaworski), San Diego (James Harris) and Chicago (Mike Phipps).

Olympic gold medalist retains archery crown

OXFORD, Ohio (AP) — Olympic gold medalist Darrell Pace clung to a lead of three points Thursday over Richard McKinney after the third round of the National Archery Tournament.

McKinney, of Muncie, Ind., moved within one point of Pace's lead at one point in Thursday's competition, but the five-time champion here ended the day by keeping a lead of 1,918 to McKinney's 1,915.

Pace, from Reading, Ohio, has led throughout the tournament, in his effort to break a string of three major defeats at the hands of McKinney.

LuAnn Ryan of Riverside, Calif., continued to hold her lead in the women's competition. Her strongest challenger after Thursday's round was Irene Daubenspeck, of Phoenix, Ariz. who pulled within two points by shooting 1,839 to Ryan's 1,841.

Professional John William, of San Bernardino, Calif., was third among the men with a score of 1,869; followed by Ed Ellason, of Charlotte, N.C., at 1,834; and Takeyoshi Matshita, of Japan, at 1,817.

In the women's competition, Ruth Rowe of Pittsburgh had a score of 1,821 followed by Lucille Lemay, of Broisbriand, Que., at 1,805 and Jean Mainland, of Belleville, Ont., at 1,793.

Robin Woods, of Phoenix, led the intermediate girls competition; Glenn Meyers, of Fremont, Mich., led intermediate boys; Beck Liggett, Muncie, Ind., was tops among junior girls; Martin Sliwinski, of Phoenix, led junior boys, Rhonda Liggett, of Muncie, Ind., led cadet girls and Bobby O'Neal, of Akron, Ohio, led cadet boys.

NO NAMES GIVEN BUT...

Five WHA clubs now seeking NHL status

NEW YORK (CP) — In a cloak-and-dagger atmosphere, the World Hockey Association announced Thursday that five of its clubs have sent new applications for membership in the National Hockey League, but WHA officials refused to name the clubs.

The WHA's board of trustees was sworn to secrecy not to disclose the names of those who applied for NHL membership next season until at least the application of a sixth club is settled.

Close-mouthed WHA officials would give only bare-bones facts about what was going on at the trustees meeting. It broke up shortly after the applications were sent to all 18 member clubs in the NHL at about 5:15 p.m. EDT.

It was indicated that the five WHA applicants each posted $1.5 million certified cheques with lawyers as part of a reported $2.9 million NHL franchise fee for each new NHL member.

Nelson Skalbania, of Edmonton Oilers, a member of the fact-finding committee, said that the problem sixth club was neither Birmingham Bulls nor Houston Aeros, but it was "the strongest club financially" — which could be Quebec Nordiques, who never have been overjoyed with the so-called accommodation between the WHA and NHL, announced after the NHL governors met in Chicago last June 24. The NHL's fact-finding committee was given the go-ahead to explore a plan involving not less than six WHA teams joining the NHL as a separate division next season, with possibly four teams getting into the playoffs.

The NHL governors will meet in New York next Tuesday and Wednesday to vote, finally, for or against the accommodation or merger with the WHA. It was understood that the five WHA applications were delivered to John A. Ziegler Jr., the new NHL president, who was in New York. Copies were sent by air express to the 18 NHL clubs.

The NHL sweepstakes for WHA membership was down to seven clubs — New England Whalers, Cincinnati Stingers, Houston Aeros, Winnipeg Jets, Birmingham, Edmonton and Quebec. One of those club owners eventually will be the odd man out.

Skalbania, the trustee from Edmonton, said that the sixth franchise is the "troublemaker."

He said that the WHA fact-finding committee "has a meeting tomorrow morning with the sixth franchise person that we have some problems with."

Later he said the meeting was scheduled for Toronto. Can you name the sixth franchise? he was asked. "We're requested not to. It's not Birmingham. It's not Houston."

Other members of the committee are Bill Dewitt of Cincinnati, Harrison Vickers of Houston and Howard Baldwin of New England.

Vickers said that Houston delivered its $1.5 million cheque and that he was "delighted" with the outcome of the meeting. The meeting room at the Essex House was like a revolving door as owners and lawyers were in and out all afternoon.

Larry Gordon, executive vice-president, had a brief statement, saying:

"There are five franchises that have solid applications for joining the National Hockey League and we're working on a sixth now and we think that'll be resolved very shortly, in a couple of days."

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Tonight in the Major Leagues

Little Fred Patek knocked in four runs with a home run and two sacrifice flies as Kansas City Royals took advantage of wildness by Toronto vitchers and downed the Blue Jays 8-0 behind Larry Gura's nine-hitter Thursday night.

Patek, the smallest man in the major leagues at 5-foot-4, lashed a two-run homer off Jesse Jefferson in the second inning and George Brett made it 3-0 with an RBI single.

Royals, posting their 10th straight home victory, scored twice in the third without a hit. Jefferson walked Al Cowens, John Mayberry and Amos Otis to load the bases, then reliever Mike Willis walked Darrell Porter to force in a run and surrendered Patek's first sacrifice fly.

Mayberry doubled leading off the fifth, went to third on a single and made it 7-0 on another Patek sacrifice. Otis walked in the seventh and came around to score on a single by Bob Heise.

In other American League action, rookie right-hander Dave Rozema won his 11th game with a six-hitter as Detroit Tigers beat Minnesota Twins 4-2.

Eric Soderholm doubled and scored the game's first run in the third inning and then singled and scored on a passed ball in the sixth with the winning run, giving Chicago White Sox a 5-4 victory over Texas Rangers.

In the National League, Biff Pocoroba smashed a home run and Atlanta

Braves erupted for three runs in the third inning to down Montreal Expos 5-2. Bake McBride singled home pinch-runner Jerry Martin in the 10th inning to give Philadelphia Phillies a 2-1 victory over San Diego.

The Juice misses

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — O.J. Simpson, Buffalo Bills' great running back, has blurred vision and will not accompany the NFL club to Pittsburgh for an exhibition match Saturday against the Steelers. Simpson said his sight has blurred occasionally ever since he was "popped over the eye last year."

Your individual Horoscope

Frances Drake

FOR FRIDAY,
AUGUST 5, 1977

ARIES
(Mar. 21 to Apr. 20) ♈
One of those days when a snap decision could turn out surprisingly well — especially if travel is involved.

TAURUS
(Apr. 21 to May 21) ♉
Whatever your plans, take into account new trends and ideas and, if necessary, change maneuvers to fit the current picture. Be dauntless, ready for the unexpected.

GEMINI
(May 22 to June 21) ♊
Another good day for launching new plans and projects. Of course, sensible precautions and complete understanding of your undertakings will be important.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23) ♋
You may gain a little here, lose a little there, but the overall picture is one of advancement. A strong lunar day stimulates quick thinking, good judgment.

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23) ♌
Emotionalism and temperamentalism could get you into trouble if not careful. Self-control needed; also a determination NOT to try and dominate others.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23) ♍
Keep on your toes now. A competitive factor of which you are unaware could be building up. Watch, too, for some tricky maneuvering.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) ♎
A fine day for artistic, family and social interests. In all things, capitalize on your general know-how and finesse to the hilt.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24 to Nov. 23) ♏
Tendencies to avoid: indecisiveness and an inclination to accept faulty information without careful checking. Otherwise, day should go well. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21) ♐

Some complexities indicated in work areas, but you can better straighten them out by working behind the scenes than otherwise. A hunch could work out here.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) ♑
The methods and tactics you usually employ may be ineffective now, but you can devise some clever variations — perhaps even more result-getting in the long run.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) ♒
Branch out to some extent. Realize your limitations, however, so you won't overreach your mark. Some complexities, otherwise.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) ♓
New opportunities for advancement indicated. Strike while the iron is hot. Don't let your occasional tendency to underestimate your abilities stand in your way.

YOU BORN TODAY are one of the most versatile of all Leos — and that is saying a lot. You have so many talents and so much imagination that you may find it difficult, at first, to find your proper niche in life. Once you have found it, however, there is no limit to the heights you can attain. You would make an excellent writer, a brilliant actor, a dynamic lawyer or statesman, but can also shine in the business world where your organizing and executive abilities, coupled with your gifts of leadership, salesmanship and promotion would take you to the top in a most dramatic way. Traits to curb: fault-finding, overaggressiveness and obstinacy. Birthdate of Guy de Maupassant, French writer; Alexander Kinglake, English historian; Neil A. Armstrong, astronaut, first man to walk on the moon; Robert Taylor, film star.

Abby's 10 Tips For Husbands

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR READERS: Last weekend I published 10 tips for wives who want a successful marriage. Here are 10 for husbands:

1. Don't ever forget her birthday, anniversary, Christmas or Valentine's Day.
2. Don't keep talking about the beautiful young chicks at work.
3. Don't pick up something to read when she's trying to talk to you.
4. Don't ever bring a friend home for dinner without asking her first.
5. Don't use her car and return it with an empty gas tank.
6. If you know you're going to be late getting home, CALL and tell her.
7. Don't try to make her jealous.
8. Don't look like a slob all weekend.
9. If you know you're wrong, don't be too stubborn to admit it.
10. Don't ever go to sleep without telling her that you love her.
